Dear Mrs. Dodson:

The Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) appreciates the opportunity to nominate candidates for the Second Annual Awards for Achievement in Managing Information Technology. We commend Carnegie Mellon University and the American Management Systems, Inc. for their efforts in recognizing individuals who have made significant contributions through the effective use of computer systems and communications technology.

Although the CIA will not be nominating a candidate for this Award, we trust that you will again solicit nominations from us again next year.

Sincerely,

for Royal E. Elmendorf

Mr. William H. Webster
Director
Central Intelligence Agency
Washington, DC 20505

Dear Mr. Webster:

Carnegie Mellon University's Graduate School of Industrial Administration (GSIA) and American Management Systems, Inc. (AMS) are pleased to announce the cosponsorship of the second annual Awards for Achievement in Managing Information Technology. These awards provide special recognition to information systems executives and professionals who have made significant contributions to their organizations through especially effective use of computer systems and communications technology. The enclosed USA TODAY article reports on 1987's winners.

If the application of information technology has contributed significantly to the success of your organization, and if these results have been achieved through the creativity and management skill of one individual, please nominate that person for the Awards for Achievement in Managing Information Technology. The recognition the individual receives from the Award will motivate others in your organization to achieve excellence. Your organization will also be recognized as a leader in providing innovative solutions to business and management problems through the use of information technology.

The winners and their chief executives will be invited to attend an awards dinner ceremony to be held in New York City in November of 1988. The winners will be presented a Steuben Glass sculpture and a cash honorarium.

In order to avoid conflict of interest, no individual who is a direct AMS client will be eligible to receive the Awards.

If you have an individual you would like to nominate, simply write us a letter or you may fill out the nomination form in the enclosed brochure. If you have any questions, please call Mrs. Jan Dodson, of AMS, at (703) 841-5830 or (703) 841-6000.

Sincerely,
